Introduction and objectives of the booklet

International migration is a global phenomenon that involves the movement of people from one country to another for various reasons. The majority of these migrants leave their countries of origin in order to find employment abroad to support their families. Currently, about eight million Filipino women and men, or 10% of the population, are working in different regions of the world. In 2006, there were 113,907 Filipino migrants legally recorded in Italy, and 70,694, or 62.1%, of these are women.

The Filipino community is one of the oldest migrant groups in Italy, and while there are existing governmental and non-governmental organizations that respond to their social and economic concerns, there is an urgent need for materials that consolidate basic information about remittances, the rights and responsibilities of foreign workers, access to social services, and other issues. These materials are designed to better facilitate the social and labour integration of migrants in the host country.

This booklet aims to provide Filipino migrant workers in Italy with concrete information about immigration laws, the sending channels and costs of remittances, available services that promote the migrant's well being, such as medical care and education, and lists of governmental and non-governmental agencies, as well as community organizations that provide assistance to migrants.

This booklet is divided into the following sections:

- I. Remittances
- II. Migrant Rights in Italy: Immigration Law - Requirements and Procedures
- III. Networks and Organizations Providing Services for Immigrants/Foreign Workers

I. Remittances

It is estimated that some 192 million people (or 3% of the global population) are migrants (IOM 2007), who send approximately $300 billion in remittances to their households and/or places of origin in 2006 (IFAD 2007). Collectively, remittances are one of the largest cash flows in the world, and are certainly indispensable for many economies, especially families in the global South.

From 1994 to 2004, Filipino migrants in Italy were the community that sent the most money to the Philippines through banks and non-bank financial companies. In 2005, the remittance flow from Italy to the Philippines amounted to €245.4 million, which doubled in 2006 at €512.8 million.¹

A. What are remittances?

Remittances are the money earned by migrants abroad, which they send home to their families and their communities of origin. Remittances are sent through different channels, including:

- Financial institutions such as banks
- Non-bank financial companies such as money transfer operators (Western Union, MoneyGram, etc.)
- Informal channels such as unlicensed couriers, entrepreneurs and travelling friends, which can facilitate the sending of money (padala system). Such informal channels are used by many migrants who do not have a bank account or because they may offer lower fees, or they do not require any type of identification.

B. Types of migrants' remittances:

- Monetary remittances are monies sent by migrants to support their families or households with basic expenses (food, housing, education, healthcare, etc.)
- Collective remittances, also called communal remittances, are monies sent by groups such as migrant associations to their home communities. Collective remittances usually support development projects at the community level, such as the construction or improvement of churches and schools, scholarships, medical equipment, etc.
- Material remittances are non-cash transfers that are sent to relatives and others. These can be gifts or donations such as food, books, toys, clothing, school supplies, or household equipment and appliances.
- Social remittances are the ideas, behaviours and identities that flow between countries as migrants are exposed to new ways of life, attitudes and ideas. The role that these resources play in promoting immigrant entrepreneurship, community and family formation and political integration is very important to the development of the communities of origin.

Remittances are sent by Filipino migrant workers mainly to their families and are used for: (a) food, utilities and other basic family needs; (b) education; (c) housing and property; (d) health and other emergencies; (e) payment of debts; and (f) money set aside for small business ventures.²

D. Tips for managing and using remittances³

- Save first before spending, and not the other way around. From your expected income, automatically set aside a portion as savings (for example 5 to 10%), and if possible, put it in a bank near your place of work or residence.
The formula should be:
 $\text{Income minus Savings} = \text{Expenses}$, and not $\text{Income minus Expenses} = \text{Savings}$.
- Budget and stick to it, no matter what. There will be special requests from family and friends that will tempt you to deviate from your budget. Be firm, and people will eventually understand that you are doing it for the good of everyone.
- Insure yourself and your family members, whether it is for health, education, your retirement or pension. When done through reputable companies, insurance plans can guarantee that you and your family's needs are attended to professionally and that funds are available when most needed.
- Avoid 'get rich quick' investment schemes and take time to make enquiries through family, friends, NGOs, or financial experts. The primary rule is that investments that offer high interest rates, even from banks, could be an indication that the financial institution is in trouble, and needs to accumulate large amounts of money by promising high returns. An example of this type of "investment" is the pyramid scheme promoted by unscrupulous agents.
- Expert advice is needed when making an investment in real estate, a business, or any other venture involving money. It is wiser to spend for an expert's fees, rather than being sorry later for spending huge amounts or even your life savings on something you cannot enjoy.

Bagasao of Ercof (Economic Resource Center for Overseas Filipinos)

- Computer literacy can enable you to finish or further your education through distance learning, remit through bank transfers, and communicate with your families through e-mail, online chat or even face-to-face conversations - at little or no cost.
- Learn the Italian language and take advantage of available skills training programmes offered by institutions in order to upgrade your skills.
- Join an organization or take up volunteer work in order to fight boredom and loneliness and open yourself to new opportunities for economic, social, and political empowerment.
- Know and network with other institutions, both in the Philippines and in Italy, that are working for the welfare of overseas foreign workers (OFWs), specifically on issues of financial literacy and management or investing remittances for savings and enterprise development. Living in Italy

Immigration Laws - Requirements and Procedures

The following sections provide practical information on the rights of regular migrants living in Italy. The immigration law in Italy is regulated by the Testo Unico (d.lgs. n. 286/1998) and by the relevant Regolamento di Attuazione (dpr. N. 349/1999) and its succeeding modifications.⁴

This booklet contains only very basic information regarding legal entry and how to maintain regular residency in the country.

It is highly advisable to seek the free services provided by Patronati and other offices listed in this booklet.

The following are the most important immigration regulations in force:

A. Entry visa and permit to stay

It is possible to migrate to Italy for the following reasons:

A.1 Tourism

Requirements are:

- Entry visa to be requested from the Italian Embassy or Consulate in the Philippines. The maximum duration of the entry visa is 90 days, and it is not renewable.
- A completed Declaration of Presence Form at the Questura or at the Border Police within eight days of arrival in Italy.

⁴ INAS-CISL provided the details of the all the basic information. Other sources of information herein contained are the websites of Ministero dell'Interno, Ministero del Lavoro, della Salute e delle Politiche Sociali, Comune di Roma, Stranieri di Italia. Many of the information are available in Italian language and needed to be translated into English.

A.2 Subordinate Work

It is possible to come to Italy on a residence contract for reasons of subordinate work for an indefinite period of time, within the limits of the annual influx quota as established by the Italian government. The requirements are:

- An entry visa from the Italian Embassy or Consulate in the country of origin following the release of the Nulla Osta by the Sportello Unico per l'Immigrazione in Italy;
- Advising the Sportello Unico per l'Immigrazione of entry into Italy within eight days of the arrival date;
- Filling out the 'Request of issuance of first permit to stay for subordinate work' KIT, available from the Sportello Unico, and presenting the following documentation in duplicate copies:
 - Nulla Osta for subordinate work;
 - Photocopy of the whole passport;
 - Certificate of suitable housing accommodation;
 - Copy of the residence/contract (Contratto di Soggiorno) signed between the employer and the employee;
 - Employer's engagement with the State to pay the travel expenses in case of an employee's sudden return to the country of origin.
- Submitting the completed KIT to the Questura (Provincial Police Headquarters) through the Italian Post Office with *Sportello Amico*⁵ desks. The Post Office will issue a receipt that guarantees legal residence of the foreign worker while waiting for the release of the residence permit (Permesso di Soggiorno).
(The receipt must be kept.)
- In many provinces in Italy, the Sportello Amico of the Post Office will immediately give the applicant an appointment with the Questura for finger printing and photo identification.
- In other provinces where this procedure is not yet implemented, the ⁵ Sportello Amico desks at the Italian Post Offices are the only ones authorized to accept the KIT for any application related to permit to stay.

Questura will contact the foreign worker for photo and fingerprint identification. The applicant will receive a notice via SMS or via registered mail for an appointment to collect the residence permit. It is also possible to monitor the process by visiting the website: www.portaleimmigrazione.it (click on "Area Riservata Stranieri" and type in the information (Nome Utente and Password) issued by the Post Office).

- Pick-up of the residence permit with validity from one to two years.
- The renewal of all residence permits (work, family, study, political and religious reasons, privileged residence permits) must be done at least 60 days before the expiration.

Important note:

As of May 19, 2008, the Department of Civil Affairs and Immigration of the Ministry of Home Affairs (Ministero dell'Interno) has issued the latest changes on the procedure regarding the submission of the request for authorization to work and the Nulla Osta for entry to Italy of highly qualified subordinate workers. These workers include: nurses, professional interpreters, teachers of international schools and international organizations, highly specialized technical workers engaged in special projects hired and working abroad, or to be hired by public, private and international institutions that do not belong to the established quota influx. All applications must be submitted online. (www.interno.it/mininterno/export/sites/default/it/sezioni/servizi/come_fare/)

A.3 Independent work

It is possible to come to Italy for independent work, which also falls under the limit of the annual influx quota established by the Italian government by completing the following requirements:

- An entry visa issued by the Italian Embassy/Consulate in the country of origin indicating the kind of activity the person intends to do in Italy. Approval or rejection of the visa application should be done within 120 days of application; and in the case of approval, the visa should be used within 180 days of its issuance;
- Advising the Sportello Unico per l'Immigrazione of entry into Italy within eight days of the arrival date;
- Filling out the 'Request of issuance of first permit to stay for independent work' KIT, available from the Sportello Unico, and presenting the following documentation in duplicate copies:

- Photocopy of passport or related documents;
 - Adequate resources for the work that the person intends to do in Italy;
 - Relevant certificate(s) attesting registration with lists and registries for recognized professional titles in Italy ;
 - Clearance from competent authorities that there are no reasons to limit the release of authorization or license for such activity;
 - Demonstration of annual income tax declaration that is higher than the minimum level stipulated by law for exemption from medical expenses. In substitution to the income, a guarantee by an Italian, a foreigner regularly staying in Italy, or an organization could be considered.
- Submit the completed KIT to the Questure (Provincial Police Headquarters) through the Italian Post Office with Sportello Amico desks. The Post Office will issue a receipt that guarantees legal residence of the foreign worker while waiting for the release of the residence permit. (The receipt must be kept).
 - In many provinces in Italy, the Sportello Amico of the Post Office will immediately give the applicant an appointment with the Questura for finger printing and photo identification.
 - In other provinces where this procedure is not yet implemented, the Questura will contact the foreign worker for photo and fingerprint identification. The applicant will receive a notice via SMS or via registered mail for an appointment to collect the residence permit. It is also possible to monitor the process by visiting the website: www.portaleimmigrazione.it (click on "Area Riservata Stranieri" and type in the information (Nome Utente and Password) issued by the Post Office).
 - Pick-up of the residence permit with validity from one to two years;
 - The renewal of the permit must be requested within 60 days before the expiration.

A.4 Family reasons

Entry to Italy for family reunification purposes is only possible when the foreigner residing in Italy is in possession of a residence permit valid for at least 1 year. Those who can apply are foreigners who are in Italy for subordinate and independent works, study, asylum, humanitarian protection, and religious reasons or for family reasons. Reunification could be requested for family members (spouses, minor children, children who have reached the age of majority but who are dependent on the parents and could not support their needs for health reasons, and dependent parents who have no other children in the country of origin, or parents over 65 years old who still have children in the country of origin, but cannot support the parents for health reasons) who are residing abroad. Applicants should have the following requirements:

- Entry visa to be requested from the Italian Embassy or Consulate in the country of origin following the release of the Nulla Osta released within 180 days after the request by the Sportello Unico per l'Immigrazione in Italy for family reasons.
- Advising the Sportello Unico per l'Immigrazione of entry into Italy within eight days of the arrival date;
- Filling out the 'Request of issuance of first permit to stay for family reunification' KIT, available from the Sportello Unico, presenting the following documentation in duplicate copies:
 - Photocopy of the whole passport;
 - Certificate of suitable housing accommodation; released only by the Comune or by the Municipio;
 - Declaration of support to the family member by the foreigner who requested the family reunification;
 - Availability of adequate income to support the family member being requested to join the foreign worker;
 - Employer's declaration of the foreign worker's request for the family reunification and the existence of working relationship;
 - Declaration of the employer to host the arriving family member, if the foreign worker is not the holder of the contract for the rent or not the owner of the apartment ;
 - Submit the completed KIT to the Questura (Provincial Police Headquarters) through the Italian Post Office with Sportello Amico desks. The Post Office will issue a receipt that guarantees legal residence of the foreign worker while waiting for the release of the residence permit. (The receipt must be kept).

- In many provinces in Italy, the Sportello Amico of the Post Office will immediately give the applicant an appointment with the Questura for finger printing and photo identification.
- It is also possible to monitor the process by visiting the website: www.portaleimmigrazie.it (click on “Area Riservata Stranieri” and type in the information (Nome Utente and Password) issued by the Post Office).
- Pick-up of the residence permit with same validity of that of the foreign family member who obtained the reunification.
- The residence permit for family reasons allows the holder to do subordinate work or independent work, to register at the unemployment list, to access to social services and to enrol in school or other professional training courses.
- The renewal of the residence permit for family reasons must be made together with the family member who has obtained approval for the reunification.
- It is prohibited to expel migrants who have up to second degree of parental relationship with Italian citizens provided they can appropriately demonstrate such relationship to the Questura - who will then issue a valid residence permit to migrant relatives - on the condition that they live together and that the Italian relatives will assume the responsibility to economically support the migrant relative.

Minor children of foreign workers who are regularly staying and are residing with parents must be listed in the residence permit of the parents until he/she is 14 years old; after which, a separate residence permit for family reasons will be issued to them.

The Testo Unico also specifies that visa entry for Italy for study, training, adoption and voluntary work is possible.

All applications for the Nulla Osta for entry to Italy for any reason must be submitted on-line: www.interno.it. For modalities and further instructions, those interested are advised to inquire from the Patronati and from the Italian Embassy/Consulate in the country of origin.

VERY IMPORTANT INFORMATION FOR ALL MIGRANTS

The Integration Agreement or Accordo di Intergrazione

At the moment of the request for the issuance of residence permit, the migrant is held to undersign an “Accordo di Intergrazione” (Integration Agreement) that are articulated in “credit points” for the achievement of its objectives to be respected within the period of the validity of the residence permit. The stipulation of the agreement is a condition necessary for the release of the residence permit. The total loss of the points determines the loss of the said permit, and therefore the expulsion of the migrant, except for those who are holders of residence permit for asylum, those applying for asylum, protection support, those who are in Italy for humanitarian and family reasons, the holders of Long-term EC residence permit (ex-carta di soggiorno).

For the request of first and or renewal of residence permit, it is foreseen that a “contribution” amounting between €80 to €200 will be paid by all applicants to the Italian government (under implementation already but awaiting further instruction from the Italian Ministry of Finance on the manner in which the contribution will be used.)

B. EC Long-term Residence Permit (ex carta di soggiorno)

The EC long-term residence permit is a document that replaced the Carta di Soggiorno, which is valid for an indefinite period of time. This document allows foreigners that are residents of Italy entry and re-entry into Italy, the performance of any kind of job (except those reserved for Italians), access to social security and assistance, education, health, etc.

A foreigner that is a regular resident of Italy can apply for the EC long-term residence permit for their spouse, minor children, adult children who are not self-supporting for health reasons, and dependent parents. To be eligible to apply for this kind of residence permit, one must:

- Be a holder of residence permit (permesso di soggiorno) for at least 5 years valid for dependent nuclear ⁶family members living with the migrant worker; subordinate or independent work, political asylum, subsidiary protection, humanitarian and religious reasons, and have been living regularly in Italy;
- Have a sufficient amount to support him/herself and his/her family members;
- Adequate housing;
- Never been convicted of any crime;
- Have passed the Italian language test.

C. The Anagrafe registry

In order to register with the Anagrafe, you must be over 18. Personally go to the Anagrafe of the Comune (Town/City) of residence where the foreigner will be given a form for completion and signature. Family members under 18 years of age must also be declared, presenting the following:

- Residence permit valid for longer than 3 months;
- Valid passport or an equivalent document;
- Fiscal code;
- Proof of documents of the civil status containing data that are not indicated in the passport (i.e., birth, marriage, divorce, kinship, etc.). All personal data indicated in the passport must exactly match with the data in the residence permit. These documents must be either:
 - Original, issued by the competent authorities in the country

⁶ Spouse, children under 18 and parents.

where the event took place, translated into Italian and then certified; or

- Original, issued by the Consular Authorities of the country of origin in Italy with authentication of the applicant's signature at the local Prefettura..

E. Social security and social assistance

The law on social security provides the following assurances and protection to migrants:

- Equal treatment between the migrant and Italian worker with respect to the right to social security in Italy;
- Protection of the workers who have exercised their activities abroad, as a result of various International Conventions on social security stipulated in Italy with some sending countries such (for example Cape Verde and Tunis);
- Protection of social security rights to the foreign worker who returns home before 65 years of age, even if the worker had paid social contributions for less than five years. The foreign worker who returned to the home country does not lose the right to pension, when requirements prescribed by the law are available. Late presentation of requests for pension guarantees the recovery of the pension quota within the limit of 10 years.
- For foreign workers holding the EC long-term residence permit, economic or social assistance can be provided - including civil invalidity, social pension, (assegno sociale) if one has completed 10 years of continuous legal residency in Italy and financial support for women during maternity period, etc.
- Registration for social security is done once the contract is signed between the employer and the employee. It is the duty of the employer to register the worker for social security. The employer must report to INPS the hiring of a domestic worker no later than ten days after the end of the calendar trimester during which the hiring took place and pay the corresponding contribution per schedule established under the INPS regulations:

F. Medical assistance and healthcare

EU and non-EU nationals registered with the Servizio Sanitario Nazionale

(S.S.N. - National Health Service) are entitled by law to receive health care. In order to obtain health and medical assistance, the foreign citizen must enrol directly at the Azienda Sanitaria Locale - ASL \(Local health Office\) in the area of residence, after which the foreigner can choose a family doctor or a paediatrician in case of children. The ASL offices are charged with facilitating the connection of the citizen to the health service network.

- Foreign nationals are required to register with the S.S.N.
 - Those with a residence permit that have regular subordinate work, are self-employed, or enrolled in the unemployment listings;
 - Those with a regular residence permit or those who are renewing their permits for the following reasons: subordinate work, self-employment, dependent family members, asylum, asylum application, adoption, foster care, citizenship or religion;
 - Dependent family members (with a valid residence permit) included in the above list.
 - Those not falling within the above-mentioned categories do not have to register with the S.S.N. Nevertheless, they have to take out a sickness, accident and pregnancy insurance policy, valid throughout Italy and extended to their dependent family members as well.
- In registering with the SSN, the following documents must be presented to the ASL:
 - Identity card (Carta d'Identità)
 - Fiscal code
 - Residence permit
 - Self-certification regarding the place of residence or actual domicile where a foreigner has lived for more than three months can be considered the actual residence (as reflected in the residence permit).
- Registration with the S.S.N. is valid for the whole length of the residence permit, as well as during its renewal.
- Issuance of a personal Health-care Card (Tesserino Sanitario Personale) which has the same validity as that of the Residence Permit

- Medical assistance is always provided:
 - During pregnancy and motherhood;
 - For children's health needs;
 - Through vaccinations according to regulations in-force and within the general disease campaigns approved by different regions;
 - Through international disease prevention programmes;
 - Through infectious disease prevention, diagnosis and treatments in general.

G. Family Planning Clinics (Consultori Familiari)

Every ASL has a family planning clinic, which according to law must offer free services to all. It is not necessary to have the family doctor's prescription in order to have access to these services. Family planning clinics have to assist pregnant women, even those without a residence permit, and their children under the age of 18. These clinics offer assistance and guidance on women's health, to those who are pregnant or to those who decide to terminate their pregnancy. ASLs must also provide gynaecological assistance, prevention and diagnosis for tumours in the female genital organs, family mediation and psychological support, vaccination against German measles for women of reproductive age, etc.

Medical assistance to pregnant women

A foreign pregnant woman has the right to medical assistance even if she is in the country illegally. She doesn't have to pay the ticket for medical assistance and for all the tests and special treatments required for safeguarding pregnancy.

Terminating pregnancy

According to Italian law, an adult woman can terminate pregnancy within 90 days of conception. After this period, pregnancy can only be terminated if the mother's life is in danger due to pregnancy, or if the baby risks being born with serious malfunctions that will place it in a dangerous physical or mental condition. In order to terminate a pregnancy, one has to seek medical assistance from a family doctor or seek assistance at the family planning clinics at the local ASL.

Hospitalization

Hospitalization expenses are taken care of by the Servizio Sanitario Nazionale (SSN- National Health Service). Medical staff must inform the patient of all the side-effects of surgical operations, anaesthesia, etc. The patient must also be informed of any alternative treatments. Before the operation the patient has to give consent and sign the acceptance of intervention.

H. Education

Minor children

All foreign children, even those without a valid residence permit, are entitled to an education. Enrolment of foreign minors is based on the same procedures and requirements as those of Italian children and can be requested at any time of the school year.

Minors falling under compulsory education are enrolled by their parents or guardians in the grade corresponding to their age unless the committee of teachers decides that the child can attend a different grade, considering the:

- Evaluation of skills, qualifications and level of competence of the child;
- Programme of study taken in the country of origin;
- Educational qualifications, if any

Right to education for foreign adults living in Italy

Foreign adults are also entitled to receive education. The right to study allows foreign workers to learn the Italian language, deemed as the most important requirement for integration into the Italian society. Language and literacy courses at various levels are available in many public elementary and secondary schools, as well as voluntary organizations all over the country.

Those who have already completed the compulsory educational levels (elementary and lower secondary level) and desire to carry on can enrol at the higher secondary level to get the relevant degree.

Foreign students are admitted to university on the same conditions applied to Italians if:

- They are living in Italy and have an EC-Long-term residence permit or a residence permit issued for subordinate work, self-employment, family, political asylum or humanitarian protection and religious reasons;
